

EVALUATION OF HUMANITARIAN ACTION

... Become more effective in all stages of evaluating humanitarian activities, from conception to dissemination

About GRM International

GRM International offer a range of courses to meet the needs of those working in international development. Our experience comes from managing more than 700 projects in more than 140 countries over nearly 50 years. The GRM Futures Group of companies consists of; GRM International, Futures Group, theIDLgroup, Channel Research and the Effective Development Group and work together as part of one group of companies with a shared goal.

Course Overview

The aim of the course is to make evaluations of humanitarian action more effective in contributing to the improved performance of interventions and to improve the quality of the evaluation process.

This course is recommended for evaluators, managers and users of evaluations.

Previous evaluation experience is not necessary, but some knowledge and experience of humanitarian action is required.

The course is facilitated by Margie Buchanan Smith and John Cosgrave, who also co-authored the ALNAP guide. (Active Learning Network for Accountability and Performance in Humanitarian Action (ALNAP)).

There will be many opportunities for learning and exchange between participants
